FLOOR RENOVATION IN 1993, STILL FULLY FUNCTIONAL

PROJECT DESCRIPTION

Project name: Farm Frites
Location: Oudendoorn, Netherlands
Year: 1993
Size: 200 m²

Farm Frites was established in 1971 as an independent family business and has remained so ever since. Farm Frites supplies a wide range of potato products to the hospitality industry and large kitchens worldwide. The Dutch market has been supplied for years from the Dutch branch in Oudendoorn. Over the years, the old concrete floor had been severely damaged by fats, high thermal loads, and constant humidity. A renovation was necessary to ensure continued high-quality production.

PROJECT REQUIREMENTS

The production of these potato products takes place in hot frying oil, which occasionally spills onto the floor. Even small spills are very aggressive to the floor. Adding hot water and steam cleaning for the cleaning of the frying vats and the floor makes it clear that the floor must offer high thermal resistance and withstand thermal shocks. Additionally, the floor needed to be moisture-resistant and safe for the employees.

SIKA SOLUTIONS

A Sika® Ucrete flooring system was the obvious choice given the environmental requirements, and it also provides a hygienic, safe, and attractive floor finish. After consultation with the client, Sika® Ucrete® UD 200 was chosen to combine high temperature resistance and thermal shocks with the appropriate level of slip resistance. Sika® Ucrete® UD 200, a heavy-duty polyurethane cement floor with a light texture, is extremely suitable for wet production environments, resistant to high thermal loads, oils, and fats.

Sika® Ucrete is an exceptionally pure product, free from volatile substances that could contaminate food products, even during application. Sika® Ucrete has the Gold Indoor Air Comfort certification, demonstrating that Sika® Ucrete complies with all emission requirements for indoor flooring systems in Europe.
